

Project Update: works underway

ADCO Constructions are undertaking the next stage of the Griffith Base Hospital Redevelopment, which has commenced with construction of the Clinical Services Building. Progress achieved includes demolition of the former Children's Ward and former Transitional Aged Care building. Bulk earthworks will commence this month in preparation for footings and installation of underground services. There is no disruption to health services during the construction of the new Clinical Services Building.

Sod Turn marks start of construction

Representatives from Griffith City Council, the Hospital Auxiliary, Health Infrastructure, Griffith Local Aboriginal Land Council, the Griffith community and Hospital staff attended a celebratory event on 6 April to turn the first sod on the new Clinical Services Building.

Consulting with the community

During the past few months, we've met with Griffith City Council, local MP Helen Dalton, and the Local Health Advisory Committee to provide updates about the Redevelopment.

Extensive community consultation has also been held with communities and groups across Griffith and surrounding areas including Darlington Point, Coleambally and Leeton by The Cad Factory, who were appointed to prepare a curatorial strategy to lead the integration of arts into the new Hospital.

Fly Through video released

New fly-through animation released in May gives the community the first-look at the health facilities within the new three-storey Clinical Services Building being delivered as part of the $250 million redevelopment.

Construction of the new hospital is set to be completed in 2025 before services are transferred over from the current hospital and the new facility is operational.
